Physical School District Location of Feeder Schools for Competitive Balance
(Updated 7-3-18)

Feeder Schools, for the purposes of Competitive Balance, are the non-public school or schools (parishes for parochial schools; schools from the same system of education for other private schools) located within a designated or chosen public school district attendance zone. A high school can have multiple feeder schools so long as they are located within the same public school district or public school district attendance zone, and a school(s) can serve as feeder schools for more than one high school simultaneously. If a non-public member high school fails to choose a school district/attendance zone for its feeder school(s), the public school attendance zone in which the non-public school is physically located will be assigned by the OHSAA Office as that school’s selected attendance zone.

As a reminder, feeder schools are considered to be from the Same System of Education (Accredited) as defined by the Ohio Department of Education. These Systems of Education Include:

1. Association of Christian Schools International (Accredited) (See Page 2)
2. Catholic Conference of Ohio (See Pages 3-10)
3. Jewish Education Center of Cleveland (See Page 11)
4. Lutheran Schools of Ohio (See Page 12)
5. Ohio Association of Independent Schools (See Pages 13)
6. Seventh-Day Adventist Oh Conference (See Page 14)
7. Other schools not accredited by above organizations (See Page 15)

In order to assist our non-public member schools in selecting their feeder school(s), the OHSAA has mapped the non-public schools the Ohio Department of Education listed, as of 5/9/18, that contain grades 7 and 8 and are coded under one of the parent organizations listed above. If there is any dispute on what is listed below, or if you feel a school is missing from the list, the OHSAA needs to be made aware of this discrepancy no later than July 6, 2018.

As an example, if a Catholic non-public high school selects an attendance zone with two parishes and one Montessori school physically located within that zone, the Catholic non-public school will only be permitted to select the two parishes as its feeder schools. For convenience, this document is organized by systems of education to prevent any of this confusion.

To complete the submission process, a senior level administrator from each non-public school will need to submit: 1.) The school’s chosen attendance zone and 2.) The school’s designated feeder schools, to the OHSAA Office, Attn: Kristin Ronai via email (kronai@ohsaa.org) by no later than July 20, 2018.

These feeder schools will remain consistent for a minimum of two school years (2018-19, 2019-20), at which time each non-public school will be permitted to change its selected school district/feeder schools to better reflect the students who matriculate to high school from the feeder school.
